A miniature conflagration occurred in Portland, Thursday evening. Two ladies were crossing Park st. bridge, when one of them a Mrs. Hutchings of Knightville, discovered that her dress was in flames. By her own exertions and the presence of mind of a Mr. Larkin, who seized a pail of water and dashed it upon her, the flame was extinguished. She was somewhat burned. It is supposed she stepped on a match.

The gross amount of surplus hay, crop of 1873, exported from Waldo county is 21,948 tons, against 11,209 tons for the preceding year. The delegation of ladies and gentlemen who conducted the religious services at the residence of Nelson Leighton, at Portland, last week, held another meeting at the same place Friday evening. Monday afternoon a terrible shower of hail accompanied with rain fell in the south edge of Wellington. Leaves of trees, weeds and vegetation generally were literally cut to pieces. Several hours afterwards the ground in fields and woods was covered with hail stones. By the side of the road where the water washed them, hailstones were piled in quantities of two to ten bushels and even one or two feet deep. Some ice balls were nearly as large as a hen's egg. Had there been much wind it would have been destructive to life and property in the extreme.—[Somerset Reporter.

The Journal says that on the 13th day of August 1873, Melich A. Nothing further was heard from him, though every effort was made. It is now thought that the remains recently found at Westbrook are his. When he left the hospital, Cross was [illegible] years old, though he appeared several years older. He had black hair and was fleshy, probably weighing over 200 pounds. He had on gray pants, and a checked shirt, and when seen in Topsham he was in his shirt sleeves. The description corresponds with the hair and shreds of clothing which were found with the remains in the woods. He probably died of exhaustion and hunger.

SOME FACTS ABOUT HYDROPHOBIA.

From the N. Y. Tribune

There is reason to hope that fresh accessions to medical knowledge of the character of hydrophobia will accrue from the observations made in the McCormick case, both before and after death The autopsy appears to have been conducted with unusual scientific care and skill. It is not yet ascertained whether the poison of rabies acts directly upon the blood or the nerves and this important question is likely to be decided in the course of the investigation. The explanation of the effort of patients afflicted with the disease to bark like a dog is very satisfactory, the fact of its being merely an endeavor to get rid of an extraordinary flow of saliva having been demonstrated by the cessation of the symptom when a powerful medicine checked the flow The expression of alarm in the countenance of the patient, the convulsive action of his muscles and the congestion within the cranium disclosed by the post mortem examination, indicate that the brain was affected and these and other features of the case distinctly show that at the time of the illness the irritation from the wound had long since ceased to be an active factor

We draw attention to these observations because they appear to teach a lesson of value The poison from rabies must penetrate the system before its most serious effects can be elicited, and fortunately it is slow in making its way from the seat of injury to vital parts Obviously the thing to do when bitten is to prevent the transmission of the virus into the system and there is plenty of time to carry out measures for this purpose In most cases a bandage can be immediately applied above the wound, which will temporarily obstruct the circulation. It is probable that sucking the wound would at once withdraw the poison at all events the knife of the surgeon and the cautery offer absolute security This view is corroborated by the observation that in most cases of hydrophobia and notably in the one under consideration the wound has not bled freely a flow of blood being likely to wash away the poison

So that, after all, people who are timorous on the subject of hydrophobia may console their fears with the reflection that in the extremely improbable event of their being actually bitten by a dog that is really mad, a tightly bound handkerchief and the nearest apothecary shop can provide the means for promptly and completely eliminating all possibility of serious results It is also noteworthy that a more careful investigation of the history of this case reveals the fact that Mr McCormick, far from being indifferent about the wound was in reality extremely anxious about its consequences How much of the disease of which he died was due to the excitement of his own fears, and how much if any, to true rabies, may yet be open to dispute And the fact still remains that by far the greater number of cases of supposed hydrophobia in the human species have been demonstrably due to fright and consequent nervous excitement, while the real disease is among the rarest known in the practice of medicine.

Several dispatches from Washington assert that during the bustle at the close of the session a bill ostensibly for the purpose of limiting the jurisdiction of the Police Court of Washington, but really conferring on the Circuit Court of the District power to bring any editor before it for trial on a criminal charge of libel without regard to the residence of the accused party The measure attracted no attention, Mr Poland and Senator Edmunds who introduced it in the two branches vouching for its propriety and innocence We can hardly credit that such intelligent members as those named would do so foolish and deceitful a thing and think there is a mistake somewhere. Any attempt to coerce the press of the country would simply prove disastrous to those who made it.

The Machias Republican, with a glimmer of sarcasm says "The convention at Augusta was a very large one considering the year in which it occurred Washington county was not very fully represented, on account of the failure of the Shore Line to connect seasonably at Bangor"

The Augusta Journal says that there are 489,174 tons of ice stored on the Kennebec river, making allowance for shrinkage, of which stock 330,500 tons have been disposed of, which leaves in store 159,675 tons not sold

The Philadelphia North American sees in the nomination of Mr Hale for Postmaster General additional proof "that the President of the United States seems studiously to ignore the just claim of the Republican party in Pennsylvania." So said'

The Hartford Courant recommends Mr Samuel Bowles as Mr Dawes' successor in Congress, giving this reason among others, viz "At least a term or two in Congress would make him a more just and discriminating critic of public affairs."

THE UNION REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE. The Union Republican General Committee have organized, and are at work. Senator Chandler has been reappointed Chairman and P M. Edmunds of Washington continues Secretary. Republican Senators and Representatives have already interested themselves and the preparation of two or three campaign documents for circulation has been commenced, and correspondence also begun with the heads of local Republican Committees throughout the country.

The postal convention between the United States and France was promulgated in the latter country Friday.

MORE MYSTERY A New York Sunday paper says that "behind the present aspect of the Beecher-Tilton scandal there is a young lady of Brooklyn involved, whose name is not yet brought before the public in connection with the case. She is handsome accomplished, wealthy, occupying a high social position, and strenuous efforts are being made to save her from disgrace. Certain parties now assailed in the case are bearing odium to shield her Tilton, on being questioned respecting the young lady declined to converse on the subject."

SUMMER RECREATION A correspondent of the Inter Ocean suggests the following route to Chicago merchants in search of recreation

Let me suggest a route that cannot but prove a delightful one to a Westerner Starting from Boston by way of the Eastern Railway, we first visit the White Mountains, then spend a few days at Old Orchard and Rye, not forgetting the delightful islands in Casco Bay From Portland, via the Maine Central, we visit Moosehead Lake, now becoming famous, and thence to Bangor, where we take the European & North American Railway to St. John From here there are a thousand new and beautiful scenes for the tourist to visit—scenes that will well repay the tourist. From St. John we visit Halifax and the wonders of the Riviere du Loup, and thence to Quebec and via the St. Lawrence home. Try it, you business men of Chicago, and you will find upon your return home that you have gained new vigor and new life that will enable you to fight the battle of life with new strength.

A CANDIDATE IN "MY MARYLAND"—The Hon. Robert McLean of Maryland has just made a speech to show why he ought to succeed Governor Swann in Congress. The object of the speech seems to be to prove that he was a fierce rebel He maintains that he demanded that the Northern troops should be met at Susquehanna, and said "Let that river run with blood rather than that coercionists should invade the Old Dominion and other Southern States", that he afterwards took the ground that they should prevent the passage through the city of Federal troops, and, if need be, go to the Susquehanna and destroy the intermediate bridges to prevent the passage of troops, next, that after his speech he was commissioned as aid de camp to the citizens, to burn the bridges to the Susquehanna and performed that duty, which is his reply to those calumniators who said 'he ran away' Further when Marshal Kane was arrested and when the Police Commissioners were taken, in July, he went to the fort to offer his professional services, moreover that in the election in 1861 he deposited his vote over the bayonets of Federal soldiers' and so on PHELPS, DODGE & CO. The reply of Phelps Dodge & Co to the charges of Gen'l Butler, in his recent Congressional speech, is as vigorous as it is conclusive It used to be said of Daniel Webster that his statements were arguments, but the statements of Phelps Dodge & Co. are so cogent as to amount to absolute proof Their simple record of facts disposes of the charge of evading duties, by importing lead as statuary, by showing, as we have before stated, that these things were done not only before the firm came into existence but before any one of its present or late members became connected with the metal importing business. The accusation that by changing the position of a comma in the tariff act of April, 1864, they were enabled to clear $2,250,000, is refuted by the views and action of Mr Fessenden, then Secretary of the Treasury, showing that their course was highly honorable throughout this whole matter As to the alleged frauds in their other invoices Phelps, Dodge & Co. not only convict General Butler of glaring falsifications but of a blundering stupidity which has fortunately overreached itself and fixed upon him a reproach which must deservedly impair his reputation either for honesty or skill as a political manager —Boston Globe.

The resuscitated Democracy don't appear to harmonize as well as they might on the ready made platform of Free Trade, Hard Money and Home Rule. The Hartford Times is unable to approve of that sentence in the resolution of the Maine Democracy which virtually demands the payment of the revenues by direct taxation It has the thoughtlessness to say that "Free Trade and direct taxation was an old cry, but it never prevailed, and, on the whole, the system of a tariff of revenue is the tax system which bears most lightly on the people" The Cincinnati Enquirer is even more energetic in its complaints of the specie payment resolution of the same platform It says, "The money power is supreme in New York and New England It rules both parties in those States with a rod of iron. As Maine and nearly everything east of Pennsylvania is Republican, a union with the Down East brethren is by no means a requisite for success by the Western and Southern Democracy At any rate, the Democracy in the campaign of 1876 will not submit to any nonsense upon the part of the Eastern capitalists"

THE AMERICAN CARDINAL Mr James A. MacMasters, editor of the New York Freeman's Journal, who is said to be about to become the American Cardinal of the Roman Catholic Church, is the son of a Presbyterian clergyman and was himself for a time in training for the clerical office in that church His claims to recognition by the ecclesiastical authorities of his church are his services as a writer and his efforts to secure money contributions for the support of the Pope since he lost his temporal dominions. He has been an extreme pro slavery man, and did all in his power to further the Southern rebellion The Chicago Tribune in speaking of the matter, says

"He has been very intemperate in his language and unchristian in his journalistic career What good can come from making a Cardinal of such a man when there are hundreds of the clergy better suited for the position, it is hard for the eye of flesh to see. The Court of Rome, however, knows its own business, we presume, and, if it shall create a Cardinal out of MacMasters, it must have its own reasons for so doing"

A NEW FASHION A Paris letter thus describes the new method of wearing the hair, in that city —

The fiat has gone forth, and the lofty top knots we have patiently endured for some years past are to give way to a return of the looped, drooping braid hanging low upon the neck Not two braids, however, as of old, only one thick one is to be worn, looped at the end and tied about half way up with a bow of black ribbon. The front hair is worn parted and perfectly flat or slightly crepe, and with a coronet plait going round the head somewhat farther back than it has heretofore been worn, while the space between the coronet braid and the back hair is filled in with puffs of hair. The style is simple, pretty, and becoming, and is already universally adopted by the fashionables here, but its adoption will necessitate an abandonment of the high ruffs and ruffings that now decorate the necks of ladies' dresses, and a return to the flat collars and narrow-quilled laces of other days.

Charles Knowles of Troy, Maine, visiting friends in Medford, Mass., was drowned while bathing in Mystic river Saturday evening He was 23 years of age.

POLITICAL AND PERSONAL.

Two Iowa Congressmen were renominated last week, the Hon, James Wilson in the 5th district, and the Hon J. W. McDill in the 2d

Gen McCook has received his commission and taken his oath of office as Governor of Colorado. He will reach Denver early in July and enter upon his duties.

Mr Buford Wilson of Illinois, the new Solicitor of the Treasury, is said by the press of his State to be a consistent anti inflationist, and to have an excellent reputation as a lawyer.

Several prominent citizens of St. Louis have formed themselves into a Bridge Monument Association for the purpose of erecting a colossal bronze statue of James B Eads, chief engineer of the bridge over the Mississippi at that point, with inscriptions thereon of the names of the associates in the work of planning and erecting the great structure. The project is to be carried out by voluntary subscriptions.

A PATENT SINGER. The New York Herald's Paris letter contains a description of a steam singer and declaimer, said to have been invented by Elias Winkel, an American. for the use of which in Europe ten years he has been paid 500,000 francs by M. Halanzier of the Paris Opera. Winkel claims that the instrument has a range of seven octaves and will do all the work required from both male and female singers.

Pulmonic Syrup, Sea Weed Tonic, and Mandrake Pills.

These medicines have undoubtedly performed more cures of Consumption than any other remedy known to the American public. They are compounded of vegetable ingredients, and contain nothing which can be injurious to the human constitution

Other remedies advertised as cures for Consumption, probably contain opium, which is a somewhat dangerous drug in all cases, and if taken freely by consumptive patients, it must do great injury, for its tendency is to confine the morbid matter in the system, which, of course, must make a cure impossible

Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup is warranted not to contain a particle of opium It is composed of powerful but harmless herbs, which act on the lungs, liver stomach and blood, and thus correct all morbid secretions, and expel all the diseased matter from the body. These are the only means by which Consumption can be cured, and as Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, Sea Weed Tonic, and Mandrake Pills are the only medicines which operate in this way, it is obvious they are the only genuine cure for Pulmonary Consumption. Each bottle of this invaluable medicine is accompanied by full directions.

Dr Schenck is professionally at his principal office, corner Sixth and Arch Streets, Philadelphia, every Monday, and at the Quincy House Boston, on the following Wednesdays, June 10th and 24th, July 8th and 22d, and August 5th and 19th.

The teachers should not fail to attend the institutes.

NEW MACHINERY. The Hinckley & Egery Iron Company finished and shipped yesterday two stock gangs, weighing about twenty-one tons, complete, for the lumber mills of G. B. James, Esq, at Norton Mills, Vt. The gangs have steel frames, thirty-eight by fifty-six inches, and are provided with wrought iron sweeps, which are coming into favor among millmen as being free from danger of breakage, and always ready for use, while wooden sweeps are a continual bother. No other establishment manufactures iron sweeps, we believe, and the increasing demand for them shows that they are appreciated as they deserve. The gangs are also furnished with Kerr's friction hitch feed, which does away with the old "rag-wheel" entirely, and the delay caused by the breaking of cogs and other accidents the old-style feed was liable to The new feed is regular and smooth, and is much liked wherever used. It may be seen in operation at Blunt & Co's mill on the Hampden road, where it was introduced by the Hinckley & Egery Company, who own the patent right in New England.

SUICIDE. Mr. Jeremiah F. Dow who has for some time past resided at No. 4 Middle street, went out for a walk yesterday morning, and returning about 9 o'clock, went to his room, where he laid down and went to sleep His wife on going to the room at 11 30 found he was not there, and knowing he had been in low spirits and fearing that harm had come to him, she asked Mr Henry W. Whitney, who lives in the other part of the house, to hunt him up. Mr Whitney complied, and found that Mrs. Dow's fears had been prophetic, for in the attic Mr. Dow lay dead on the floor in a pool of his own blood. Appearances indicated that he had seated himself on a stool and cut his throat with a keen razor, which was found under his right hand. He inflicted three gashes upon his neck, and the throat was fairly cut from ear to ear, making a shocking spectacle. A bottle partly filled with laudanum was found near the body, and a cup containing a small quantity, showing that he had probably taken a large dose of the poison before cutting his throat.

A few months since Mr. Dow was thrown from a carriage and struck on his head with great force, and this undoubtedly affected his brain, as he has since exhibited unmistakable symptoms of aberration of mind. To add to his troubles he has been out of work for some time, so that there is no question but he suicided while suffering from an attack of melancholy insanity. Coroner Wilson impaneled a jury and held an inquest soon after the deed was discovered, and the verdict was that deceased came to his death by a razor in his own hands while in a fit of insanity.

Mr. Dow came to this city from Lowell, Mass., in 1853, and has held the position of salesman in several dry goods and clothing houses. He was much esteemed and had many friends. He was 42 years of age, and leaves a wife (sister of young Ladd of the 6th Mass. Regiment, who was killed by the roughs in Baltimore in '61) and a son 15 years of age

BANGOR POLICE COURT

SUPREME JUDICIAL COURT

EASTERN DISTRICT LAW TERM.

Monday, June 29th. The following cases were disposed of to-day:

PENOBSCOT COUNTY.

John A. Eames vs John Trickey et al On defendant's motion for a new trial. Trover for a carload of lumber run to defendant's with others and for which defendant's failed to account to plaintiff—verdict was for plaintiff against both defendants.

Godfrey. Mitchell.

Royal E. Matthews vs. Hiram H. Fiske. On defendant's motion and exceptions. To be argued in writing.

J. P. Robinson, Weatherbee, Wilson
L. Barker & Woodard.

KNOX COUNTY.

Rufus Newbit vs. Inhabitants of Appleton. On exceptions and motion for new trial by defendant. Action for recovery of supplies furnished a certain pauper. Only one if any, of the overseers of the poor was notified of pauper's need of relief—court at nisi prius charged that this was sufficient—Defendants say notice should be given to all or at least, a majority of the overseers.

Hanley. H. Bliss

All cases upon the law docket having been argued, the Court adjourned till Tuesday morning when the Court will come in to announce decisions and opinions and thereupon finally adjourn.

THE THUNDER STORM.

A SUCCESSION OF HEAVY SHOWERS AND THE DAMAGE THEY DID.

People who enjoy a thunder shower (if any there be) had an opportunity for perfect happiness, yesterday, for it was most emphatically a good day for 'em. And people who are afraid of such natural phenomena had an excellent chance for being scared "by thunder." About half past nine o'clock in the forenoon the first shower came up, but though it rained great guns the thunder was no great shakes. This out of the way, the weather was comparatively pleasant until the middle of the afternoon when immense inky clouds came rolling up out of the west, and shower after shower passed over, following each other so fast that the intervals between were of but few minutes' duration.

THE RAINFALL,

Rain fell in torrents, turning the streets into water-courses and the gutters into roaring torrents. Many of the grates over the sewer-chimneys were clogged with debris, and side walks were flooded and streets badly gullied in a few minutes. In some cases the sewers were either not large enough to carry away the great body of water forced into them or became stopped up, and cellars were flooded. This was the case on Exchange st., where Blood & Rowe's cellar had three feet of water in it, the cellar of Sweet's crockery store was filled nearly to the floor, and the barber shop in the basement of the Exchange was flooded. Other cellars on that street were also nearly half filled, and the damage must have been extensive. Wood, Bishop & Co's foundry on the Hampden road, was flooded to the depth of several inches, and the moulds and other material were more or less damaged.

DAMAGE BY LIGHTNING.

The lightning was very frequent, sharp and blinding, and the close-following crashes of thunder indicated that it was striking in many places in the immediate vicinity of the city. We have heard of but three buildings struck, however, and hope that no further damage was done. An electric bolt "bolted" into Dole & Fogg's mill on the iron track used for running cut lumber, and played some strange freaks among the machinery, but beyond leaving a sulphurous smell and shaking the nerves of the workmen somewhat, it did no damage.

The barn of Captain James [illegible], below Sterns & Co's mill, was struck and set on fire in so many places that it was impossible to save it, and it was consumed with nearly all its contents

The house of Mr. Charles G. Glidden, situated on a cross street near Wilson street in Brewer, was struck and about as badly smashed up as could be and be still left standing. The walls and partitions are shattered, the plastering is peeled off from walls and ceilings, and the very timbers are splintered, so great was the force of the shock. Mrs Glidden had been lying on a lounge in one of the rooms, but went out to a neighbor's about ten minutes before the house was struck, and it was a fortunate move for her, as the lounge on which she had been lying was torn into rags and splinters. Bed clothing was thrown from one room to another, and the most curious freaks of the electric fluid are visible in every part of the house Fortunately the building did not take fire.

Several large trees in Brewer and some on the river road above this city were demolished by the lightning, but we hear of no person injured.

The Kenduskeag was raised to freshet pitch and the tides being unusually high, the water was up to the lower floor of Strickland's block last night.

The showers, or rather storm, continued until late in the evening, and as we write this (at 1 A M) the sky is still covered with clouds and there are indications of more rain.

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH.

CELEBRATION OF INDEPENDENCE DAY.

It is probable that that the only notice which will be taken of the coming Fourth of July in this city, will be a national salute, fired by the Bangor Light Artillery, and the ringing of the church bells, for which the City Council made provision at their last meeting. Murray's popular circus will exhibit here, giving three performances, and will as usual draw a big crowd of people residing here as well as many along the line of the E. & N. A. Railway who will probably take advantage of the excursion rates offered on that road.

EXCURSIONS.

Excursion tickets will be for sale at this city and St. John for all stations on the E. & N. A. road, on and after to-day, and they will be good until Monday, July 6th. Quite a number of people from this city will go to St. John to attend the races on the Moosepath Park, Thursday, in which several Bangor horses are entered.

The steamer Cambridge of the Sanford Line will take excursionists on her trip to Boston on Thursday, July 2d, and they can remain until after the $20,000 display of fireworks on the Common. Tickets for the round trip will be sold for $4 and are good for ten days. The Cambridge will make an excursion down Boston harbor on the 4th. The Bangor Cornet Band and Andrews' Orchestra will accompany the Cambridge on the entire excursion.

The steamer City of Richmond will make an excursion on the 4th down river as far as Camden, touching each way at Bucksport, giving an opportunity for those desiring to attend the celebrations at Bucksport and Camden. Returning, the steamer will leave Camden about 9 o'clock in the evening.

CELEBRATIONS ELSEWHERE.

BUCKSPORT. The patriotic citizens of Bucksport have made arrangements for celebrating the 4th in fine style, and the following programme has been adopted.—At sunrise, ringing of bells; at 5 A. M., parade of the "Squash Bug Dragooners," at 7.30, tub race at Tannery Pond; at 9 grand procession forms under the direction of Gen. A. B. Spurling, and marches through the principal streets; at noon, collation; at 1 30 P M, oration, at 3, shell and boat races on the river, at 4, foot and bag races; at 5, trial of fire engines, at 6 30, collation, at 7 30, open air concert by Bangor Cornet Band A grand ball will be given in Lyceum Hall in the evening.

M, fantastical parade headed by Dexter Cornet Band; at 10, Eagle and Torrent Engine Cos. and Union Hook and Ladder Co. will parade in full uniform, and after the parade the two engines will play for a silver trumpet, at noon, collation will be served to Fire Department by ladies; at 2 30 P. M, tub race above Abbott's mill, sack race, wheelbarrow race and foot race on Main st, at 5 30, out-door concert in front of town hall by Dexter Band; in the evening, dramatic entertainment by Oriental Dramatic Company of Newport, followed by fire works.

CAMDEN is to have quite an extensive celebration, the leading features of which will be a fantastic parade in the morning, a collation at noon in a grove on Grove st, and an oration at the same place by Hon. S. L. Milliken. The Warren Band will furnish music, and the Vinalhaven firemen, who take part in the celebration, will bring a band with them. Parties from Rockland, Warren, Hope, Lincolnville and the Islands will spend the day in Camden.

WATERVILLE The programme for the celebration at Waterville is as follows:—At sunrise, noon and sunset, salutes and ringing of bells, at 6 A M., fantastic parade, at 10 A. M, procession of firemen, town officers and sabbath schools will form and march to Eaton's grove, where a short address will be delivered by Rev. Mr. Merrill; at 1 P. M., public dinner for firemen and invited guests in town hall, and picnic dinner for schools in grove; at 3 P. M, trial of fire engines; at 3.30 display of fire words.

LINCOLN CENTRE. The Liberal Sewing Circle of Lincoln Centre will celebrate the 4th by an excursion on the steamer John A. Peters, which will leave that place at 8 A M, and return at noon. At 12.30 P. M, a dinner will be served in the grove, the steamer will make another trip in the afternoon, and a social dance will take place in Babcock's Hall in the evening

DOVER AND FOXCROFT. The temperance organizations of Piscataquis county will have a grand celebration in Dover and Foxcroft on the Fourth. An oration will be given by ex-Governor Perham of Paris. After the address a dinner will be given at the Academy yard in Foxcroft.

PRESQUE ISLE. The citizens of Presque Isle will celebrate the Fourth by dedicating the soldiers' monument (which we fully described after it was finished at Bradbury's marble works in this city) with appropriate ceremonies. Col. J. Frank Godfrey of this city will deliver the address. The Houlton Cornet Band will furnish music during the day and in the evening a grand vocal and instrumental concert will be given.

CHERRYFIELD. The monument which the town of Cherryfield voted to erect to the memory of the soldiers from that locality who lost their lives in the war of the Rebellion and which was finished last week by Bradbury of this city, will be dedicated on the Fourth, with appropriate ceremonies, and the oration on the occasion will be delivered by ex-Gov. Washburn of Portland. There will be a procession at 10 A. M., before the exercises, and a public dinner at 1 P. M. Salutes will be fired at sunrise and sunset, and fireworks will be displayed in the evening. The Cherryfield Cornet Band furnishes music.

MACHIAS will celebrate by salutes morning and evening; fantastic parade, procession and oration in the forenoon; sack and wheelbarrow races, base ball, etc., in the afternoon, and Concert by Machias Cornet Band and display of fireworks in the evening.

PEMBROKE. Post No. 1, G. A. R., will take charge of the celebration in Pembroke. Mounted parade in the morning, followed by oration; dinner at noon; horse and foot races, match game of base ball, etc, in the afternoon; display of fire works in the evening. A promenade concert and military ball will be given on the evening of July 4.

TROTTING MATCHES.

Trots are announced to come off on the Webster Park at Orono, Pittsfield Union Park at Pittsfield, (Purses of $125 for all horses, $75 for 2.40 horses and $100 for 3 minute horses), Monroe Park (Purses of $100 for all horses, $40 for 2 50 horses, $35 for 3-minute horses and $25 for 4 year old colts), and at Lincoln Centre purses not announced.

NEW MAGAZINES.

The first of several historical papers on The Pioneers of Oregon is by Mrs Victor. Dr. Ver Mehr furnishes another of his characteristic Netherland papers, entitled The Rack, while Dr. Stillan continues his Argonautic series of papers in a most readable contribution John Muir's articles on Mountain Sculpture are attracting wide attention, the third part, in this number, treating of Ancient Glaciers and their Pathways, accompanied by comprehensive outline drawings. The post of honor in the magazine is accorded Canon Kingsley, the celebrated English author, who contributes a short but interesting paper on Our Norse Forefathers. The stories and poetry of the number are, as usual, very fine Published by John H. Carmany & Co, San Francisco

M. Mansardis, a Bonapartist, has written a letter in which he acknowledges a committee exists for the furtherance of a plebiscite, and that Rouher is its President. The statement is made in the face of Rouher's recent denial in the Assembly of any knowledge of such a committee.

THE DISTRICT SAFE BURGLARY. The testimony in the District of Columbia safe burglary investigation, making a book of 420 pages, is in the hands of the Attorney General and the Secretary of the Treasury It will be turned over to the new Solicitor of the Treasury for examination immediately on his arrival. The testimony, it will be remembered, criminated the Secret Service Bureau, but Col Whitely, the head of this Bureau, protests his innocence, and demands a full investigation. It is encouraging to know that Secretary Bristow is determined to go to the bottom of the whole business, and punish the conspirators whoever they may be,

The Boston Journal says. "It needs no prophet, therefore, to say that while Mr Dawes purposes to retire wholly from public life, the people of Massachusetts will simply promote him, with whatever brief interval unavoidable exigencies may require, from the House to the United States Senate

A Chicago clergyman relates the following anecdote "I once married a handsome young couple, and as I took the bride by the hand, at the close of the ceremony and gave her my warmest congratulations, she tossed her pretty face, and pointing to the bridegroom, replied, "I think he is the one to be congratulated"

The charge was recently made that Gen. Burnside, while President of the Cairo and Vincennes R R Co, made a contract on its behalf for the construction of the line, and at the same time entered into an arrangement with the contractors by the terms of which the profits were to be equally divided between him and them, and thinks that an explanation is desirable. A despatch from Providence says it is authoritatively stated that at the time he made the contracts Gen. Burnside was the sole and absolute owner of every share of stock of the railroad and therefore felt that he had a right to make such contracts as he pleased"

THE SYRACUSE DISASTER. The venerable Rev Dr John Dowling, formerly of Providence, father of Rev George T. Dowling, writes a note to the New York Herald relative to the disaster at Syracuse, from which we take the following —

I arrived from New York myself in Syracuse less than an hour before the accident on a professional engagement to preach at a dedication a few miles distant. My son met me at the depot. We looked in together upon the festival on my way to his home. I was urged to remain, but on account of weariness from the journey declined and left after about five minutes. In fifteen minutes from the time I left the ruin was accomplished, and my dear son and his wife went down with the broken floor, with about three hundred others. But, thanks to God, almost miraculously as it seems to me, they escaped with scarcely any bodily injury. They were separated in the crash; my son fell through the opening down to the floor beneath, and was taken out, as were many others, through the window. My daughter clung to the remains of the floor above, which was held up by the beam, one end forming a kind of inclined plane, up which, with some help from others in the same danger, she was enabled to climb slowly by clinging to the carpet, which was still on that part of the floor, and though blinded and almost suffocated by the plaster, she eventually reached the door and was taken out. To day, thank God, they are both nearly as well as ever, and my dear son has even been visiting some of the bereaved and afflicted of his flock and striving "to comfort others with the comfort wherewith he himself is comforted of God."

I will only add that the main church building is wholly uninjured. It is strong, substantial and for months past has been regularly crowded every Sunday. Service will be held as usual next Sunday. I shall not permit him to preach (he has always been a good boy and obedient to his father); but he will, if as well as he is to day, make his appearance in the pulpit and probably say a few words. Laus Deo soli. JOHN DOWLING.

ARETHUSA

BY W. W. BAILEY

Arethusa, maiden fairest,
Lovely is the garb thou wearest,
Pink and purple is thy bonnet,
Golden are the jewels on it
And still fairer is thy face—
Peeping through its fringe of lace

No wonder that thy lovers bold
Pursued thee in the days of old,
And sought to win by every wile
The precious offering of a smile,
For as thy beauty as I gaze
I mourn those long departed days

No simple flower thou art to me,
A classic nymph in form I see,
And Alpheus seeking far and wide
The river beauty for his bride
Hard, hard to win I know thou art,
Yet, blossom, I shall gain thy heart

I'll shield thee from the chilly wind
The painted cup for thee I'll find,
I'll bring azaleas pure and sweet,
To weave a carpet for thy feet,
And serve thee so from day to day—
Thou wilt not longer speak me nay!

A smile upon thy face I see,
Which shows a promise unto me
Thy merry eyes with laughter shine,
I hold thy little hand in mine,
And Arethusa, be thou sure
I love thee well forever more!

PUCK IN THE PULPIT.

BY MRS. H. G. ROWE

The church door creaked so gently upon its hinges, as church doors have a habit of doing, and the faint rustle of feminine garments gave the signal for every head in the congregation to turn curiously toward the entrance, and as many pairs of eyes to take a swift but comprehensive survey of the dainty little figure whose rosy face grew a shade rosier, although the small head assumed an air of jaunty, half unconscious dignity, as its owner tripped up the aisle, and stood demurely waiting for a moment at the door of one of the square, old fashioned pews, until good Deacon Stinchfield should so far awake from his pious abstraction as to notice her presence, and open the door far enough to allow her the privilege of crushing her new over skirt between his pepper and salt covered knees and the pew front.

There was a little unavoidable stir, of course, as the new comer seated herself, and then the young minister rose to place his open Bible upon the desk before him, and as almost any man would have done, glanced carelessly, for an instant, at the cloud of fluttering blue drapery in the deacon's seat beneath [illegible] as any man would have [illegible] the sweet girlish face, flushed a little [illegible], and wearing a look about the rosy lips that was [illegible] bewitching compromise between a pout and a laugh, while the blue eyes, a perfect match for the dress, looked up into his own with an innocent surprise, not [illegible] satisfaction.

[illegible] Eldon [illegible] was [illegible] little [illegible] blue [illegible] the only one who [illegible] with a [illegible] pleased expectancy at the strong yet mild featured face of the stranger, as in a clear manly voice, he commenced reading the chapter selection for the occasion.

"I am come into my garden, my sister, my spouse. I have gathered my myrrh with my spice."

Slowly [illegible], he repeated the sacred words with a keen appreciation of their poetic beauty [illegible] an unconscious softness to his voice, as glancing downward for a single second, he caught the look from a pair of upturned eyes that had in them, just now an expression more mischievous than saintly, while some irreverent elf seemed to jog his elbow and whisper in his startled ear a decidedly secular rendering of the sacred passage:

[illegible] the garden, Maud,
I am here at the gate alone
[illegible] the [illegible] waft abroad
And the musk of the roses blown.

A guilty flush crept to his forehead, while conscience gave him a smart rap with her ever ready baton that again unloosed his tongue and enabled him to read, with a solemn distinctness that to his abashed and [illegible] had in it a ring of something almost farcical:

"She shall be brought unto the King in raiment of needlework."

Something blue, with a downy cloud like border flittered tantalizingly between his eyes and the sacred page, but he read bravely on.

"Thou art beautiful, O my love, as Tirzah, comely as Jerusalem. Thy lips are like a thread of scarlet, and thou hast doves' eyes between thy locks. Turn away thine eyes from me for they have overcome me."

There must have been a secret significance in this appeal that made itself felt, unconsciously perhaps, by one at least of his flock, for the blue eyes in the deacon's pew drooped beneath their snowy lids, and a repentant [illegible] disturbed the dimples about the rosy mouth, as [illegible] but the sacred majesty of the throne to which he now appealed the young preacher's soul, with reverent mien and face that seemed suddenly to have cast whatever of earthliness yet clung to it, as he pleaded humbly yet with that confidence of a man [illegible] that the [illegible] fathers would bless and strengthen his own [illegible] his holy church.

He was an honest man [illegible] young preacher [illegible] his [illegible] vineyard [illegible] particular reader [illegible] with the [illegible] tempting [illegible] and the [illegible] himself assaulting him with half forgotten scraps of poetry not to be found in the hymn book, and never before thought of [illegible] dainty imagery from the depths of his own sorely perturbed, yet guiltily delighted heart, it is no wonder that he actually trembled as the choir sang the last verse of the opening hymn and he knew that in a moment more he must stand up before that people as an expounder of God's word while his own weak human heart was as he painfully realized, far beyond his control.

For a moment his head was bowed in silent earnest prayer for help, and when he [illegible] faced his people, there was a firm [illegible] the [illegible] lips, as in simple, yet [illegible] phrase, he depicted the love of Christ for his church the tender unforgetting [illegible] the loving forbearance to which only the purest highest type of human love can [illegible] compare while with a reverential [illegible] that sent a magnetic thrill to the [illegible] of many a callous sinner and worldhardened Christian he spoke of the patient [illegible] suffering, the ever ready forgiveness of that often neglected often slighted One who ever waits with dew wet locks and out stretched, bleeding hands for the first word, the first tear even of repentant love, to extend anew his forgiveness and trust.

And as the blessed truths fell from his lips, the young preacher felt his own soul strengthened and refreshed. The blue eyes still looked up into his own, no longer curious or mischievous, but softened and tearful with emotion, no longer a distraction, but an inspiration that lent both power and beauty to the words upon his lips.

The services were concluded, and the minister stood in the shadow of the tall pulpit, drawing on overcoat and gloves with a slow, mechanical exactness, while he furtively watched, over the head of Deacon Stinchfield, who stood at the foot of the altar stairs patiently awaiting his coming, a girlish figure that, floating down the aisle, jostled and overtopped by the taller and less tastefully attired farmer's wives and daughters, made him think of a bright faced pansy in a tangle of buttercups, and he started half guiltily, as the good deacon's voice met his ear.

"You give us a dretful good sermon this time, elder an' one that deserves a good dinner, so if you'll just come along with me, I'll see t you have it."

The deacon laughed a little at the conclusion of his hospitable speech, but there was something deeper than mirth in his honest eyes, as he added, in a lower tone than usual:

"I tell you that's the sort of a sermon that does folks good—a sermon that comes straight from an' goes straight to a man's heart. Why, it's warmed up the frosty corners of my old heart wonderful, an' if you'll believe it, I tuned up in that last hymn an' sung it right through, a thing I ain't done afore these ten year."

The minister smiled. The old man's cordial approval of his sermon heartened him up wonderfully, and he began to think that the work might be blessed after all, even if the workman's hand was grimy from contact with the common things of earth.

Just then a merry jingle of sleigh bells warned them to step aside into the untrodden snow, while a sleigh full of cloaked and hooded girls dashed past, and seated on the front seat beside the driver, a tall, stalwart young countryman, was the deacon's pretty pewfellow, her girlish face all aglow with the frosty air, and the exhilarating drive, while the dainty, down-bordered cape seemed to have an intimate acquaintance with the rough sleeve of her companion's overcoat—too near, the minister thought, and he frowned involuntarily as the deacon said good-naturedly:

"I'm glad Nate Buck thought to offer Rose Mayberry a ride in his cutter; for it's a long walk for her home such a cold day as 'tis today."

"Rose Mayberry?" The minister liked pretty names, and this seemed remarkably appropriate he thought; but he only asked, in an indifferent tone:

"Is that the name of the young lady in blue?"

The deacon stared. He was evidently bewildered at the young man's description:

"Wall, ye—s, I s'pose so. She don't seem nothin' but a little gal ter me, and—I guess her gown was blue, come to think on't. At any rate, she's the one that sot in my pew.—P'raps you noticed her there?"

"Yes."

That was very meekly spoken, for the speaker's heart was full of shame and contrition as he thought how he, the very priest at the altar, had so far stooped from his high and heavenly calling as to take note of a pretty face and dress, even in the midst of his solemn duties, and he fancied that even the good deacon seemed a little constrained and ceremonious as he ushered him into the "front room" of his comfortable mansion, and after bidding him sit down, an' make himself ter home, went in search of his wife and daughter, who, having ridden home, were already busy in active preparations for the entertainment of their expected guest.

"How do you do, Mr. Eldon? It's an awful cold day! Do sit up nigher the fire, an' let me get you somethin' hot—a cup of weak ginger tea, now, with milk an' sugar in it, is so warmin' after a cold walk. No? Well, do let me take your overcoat an' hat. Here, Abigail! Mr. Eldon, shall I make you acquainted with my daughter Abigail? Abigail, do put another stick o' wood on that fire—seems ter me the chill ain't fairly off the room yet, for all we built a fire in here before eight o clock this mornin'. Deacon, do take Mr. Eldon's things an' hang 'em up in the entry closet. Well, Mr. Eldon, you give us an excellent sermon this mornin', if I do say it—an excellent sermon, one that 'll be remembered, too."

Here Mrs. Stinchfield stopped to take breath, and Abigail, a dejected looking damsel, with downcast eyes, and a timid, nervous manner, remarked under her breath, that the "parish needed a minister very much."

And Mrs. S., having taken time to "steam up," caught at the idea and was off again.

"Yes, that they do, you'd better believe.—After old Elder Parsons was turned out ter grass, or what's the same thing, sent off as a home missionary, we had Elder Smart, an' part o' the church thought the sun riz in the heels of his boots, and t'other part didn't, an' so 'fore long, he thought 'twas best to leave, an' then Elder Barton tried it, but folks found so much fault with 'is wife 'cause she wore four ruffles on 'er dress an' kep' a hired girl all the time, that he wouldn't stay, an' here we've been dependin' for the last year on old Parson Longbow from the Cross Corners, with a stray student, now an' then, from the Seminary. Now I do hope, Mr. Eldon, that you'll turn out to be the right man in the right place."

The deacon and his daughter echoed the wish, and the young minister himself modestly acquiesced, remarking, with a touch of Ministerial dignity in the tone and manner, that he hoped wherever he might be that he might be the right place for him, while the deacon gravely quoted from his biblical store, "'All my steps are ordered by thee,'" whereat Abigail looked apprehensive, and her mother sternly inflexible.

"There's some things," continued the deacon, emboldened by his wife's unwonted silence to take a part in the conversation, "that it's a dreadful hard to find out what really is ordered as to 'em. There's marryin' an' givin' in marriage, for instance now, you don't want ter force a child's feelings on such a matter—"

"Deacon!" interrupted his wife, warning[ly].

"But at the same time, perhaps, you see, just as plain as day, yerself, that she's particularly fitted for a particular place that she can fill if she marries the one she's sot on havin' an' that wants—"

"Deacon!"

The warning was more sharply spoken than before, and the poor deacon colored and stammered like an embarrassed school-boy.

"He's always gettin' up some such imaginary case jest for the sake of an argyment," explained the lady with an indulgent nod in the direction of her discomfited spouse. "I always tell him there's real fences enough ter climb over in the course of a life-time without troublin' himself with imaginary ones."

"Very true," assented the minister, guardedly, for one glance at poor Abigail's conscious face was enough to make transparent her mother's flimsy subterfuge, and a feeling of kindly interest suddenly sprang up in the young man's heart—an interest that all the poor girl's awkward attempts at 'agreeableness could never have awakened.

It was evident that the deacon's daughter, plain and unromantic as she seemed, was meekly trying with all her woman's strength, to sing her psalm of life in spite of the constant drizzle of parental disapproval, and Maurice Eldon's chivalrous soul was up in arms at once in behalf of the evidently oppressed damsel.

"This is Johann Springer, Mr. Eldon—a young man that I brought up from a boy," remarked the deacon, as they sat down to dinner. And Mr. Eldon looked into the face opposite him at the table—a rough, sunburned [illegible] that flushed still deeper [illegible] acknowledged the dea[con's] introduction with a gruff [illegible] and immediately [illegible] up the business of the occasion [illegible] that left him [illegible] in the table talk that [illegible] amusing as probably [illegible]

Life Without Enjoyment

No human being whose stomach and liver are disordered can enjoy life. Business is a fatigue and a bore, and amusements flat and unprofitable, [illegible] indigestion, biliousness, and disturbance of the bowels and the nerves which always accompany them. The shortest, surest, safest way to get rid of these evils, and of the mental despondency which grows out of them, is to tone and regulate the system with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Of all stimulants it is the purest, of all vegetable tonics the most active, of all cathartics the mildest, of all anti-bilious preparations the most swift and certain in its operation. During the twenty odd years that it has been in use it has lived down professional prejudices, distanced competition and taken rank as the standard restorative of the age.

Dear Sir:—Learning that you are to be in town for a day or two, we take this opportunity of asking you to address us and others upon the subjects to which you have given special attention, we mean—The Nature of Life, the Biometry, and Signs of Longevity of Human Life, and particularly their application to Life Insurance.

To Doctors Carpenter, Brewer, Buckley, Stacy, Bordwell and Holden

Gentlemen:—Nothing would please me more than to accept your invitation, but I am just now so positively engaged that I cannot at present spend more time in Albany. If you will specify an evening a week or two hence, I shall and will very gladly reciprocate your politeness and do my best to entertain you upon the very interesting and exceedingly important subjects which you mention.

Very respectfully and truly yours,

T. S. LAMBERT, M. D.

Albany, March 16th, 1874.

In accordance with the foregoing correspondence, and also upon the invitation of the Insurance Committee of the Assembly of the Legislature of New York State, the Lecture, therein referred to, will be given on Wednesday evening, April 1st, in the Assembly Chamber.

(From the Albany Argus)

DR. LAMBERT UPON "BIOMETRY."

The crowded state of our columns in yesterday's issue compelled us to defer notice of Dr. Lambert's address before the committee of the Legislature, on Wednesday evening. The house was crowded by an attentive audience including members of the medical fraternity, the bar and the clergy, and other professional men. The scope of the lecture was to present, in some of its leading principles and features, the subject of "Biometry," or the laws of hereditary descent, and the signs and indications of longevity, as a science, positive, practicable, and of very great value in its application in all the varied relations of life. He gave practical illustrations referring to strangers in the audience, of the signs and indications of longevity—and stated very clearly and succinctly the laws and principles upon which the science rests. The practical facts noticed by all, of hereditary tendencies, were shown to have relation to the inherent capabilities of living. These conditions can all be measured, and a judgment upon them by one who has become even ordinarily expert may be relied upon—especially in determining the proper premiums to be charged in insuring lives. Referring to the "experience" tables in use by the Insurance Companies, their disagreement with each other and their inconsistencies in assumed data were pointed out. It was urged that the only safe and just basis was found in following the teachings of Biometry, and rating each risk upon its own characteristics. The safety, as well as the equity, of this was shown in the fact, as an illustration, that in the company with which he is connected (the American Popular), which originated the plan, the death losses have been for the last year only between three and four per thousand persons, while some companies have lost as high as twenty-four, and many over ten per thousand—the varying rates of loss being in themselves proof of the unreliability of the tables, and of the general average system of insuring all lives of the same age at the same rate. Life insurance, he said, is simply protection of the family in case of the death of its head, and its simple and common sense method is found in the payment, year by year, of the natural premium representing the mortality belonging properly to that year,—the "Term Life Increasing Premium,"—at low cost, without surplus, without "dividends," without speculation, without deception.

Dr. Lambert was appropriately introduced by Dr. Carpenter, of the Assembly, and was listened to throughout his long address with marked attention.

No other company in the world applies these principles, or gives the advantage of a lower rate of premiums to those possessed of the natural inheritance of long life.

The only questions with them are, sound health and the general average mortality of a given age.

The AMERICAN POPULAR, by its graduation of risks, insures each according to the individual characteristics of the risk,

It fixes the premium rate accordingly without any special reference to the age.

Its premiums are based therefore upon the actual risk of the individual, changing from only the cost of carrying his risk

This is JUST, EQUITABLE AND SAFE.

Eight years' experience has proved these facts.

APPLETON'S AMERICAN CYCLOPÆDIA

New Revised Edition

Entirely rewritten by the ablest writers on every subject. Printed from new type, and illustrated with Several Thousand Engravings and Maps

The work originally published under the title of THE NEW AMERICAN CYCLOPÆDIA was completed in 1863, since which time the wide circulation which it has attained in all parts of the United States, and the signal developments which have taken place in every branch of science, literature, and art, have induced the editors and publishers to submit it to an exact and thorough revision and to issue a new edition entitled THE AMERICAN CYCLOPÆDIA.

Within the last ten years the progress of discovery in every department of knowledge has made a new work of reference an imperative want.

The movement of political affairs has kept pace with the discoveries of science, and their fruitful application to the industrial and useful arts and the convenience and refinement of social life. Great wars and consequent revolutions have occurred, involving national changes of peculiar moment. The civil war of our own country, which was at its height when the last volume of the old work appeared, has happily been ended, and a new course of commercial and industrial activity has been commenced.

Large accessions to our geographical knowledge have been made by the indefatigable explorers of Africa.

The great political revolutions of the last decade, with the natural result of the lapse of time, have brought into public view a multitude of new men, whose names are in every one's mouth, and of whose lives every one is curious to know the particulars. Great battles have been fought and important sieges maintained, of which the details are as yet preserved only in the newspapers or in the transient publications of the day, but which ought now to take their place in permanent and authentic history.

In preparing the present edition for the press, it has accordingly been the aim of the editors to bring down the information to the latest possible dates, and to furnish an accurate account of the most recent discoveries in science, of every fresh production in literature, and of the newest inventions in the practical arts, as well as to give a succinct and original record of the progress of political and historical events.

The work has been begun after long and careful preliminary labor, and with the most ample resources for carrying it on to a successful termination.

None of the original stereotyped plates have been used, but every page has been printed on new type, forming in fact a new Cyclopædia, with the same plan and compass as its predecessor, but with a far greater pecuniary expenditure, and with such improvements in its composition as have been suggested by longer experience and enlarged knowledge.

The illustrations which are introduced for the first time in the present edition, have been added not for the sake of pictorial effect, but to give greater lucidity and force to the explanations in the text. They embrace all branches of science and of natural history, and depict the most famous and remarkable features of scenery, architecture and art, as well as the various processes of mechanics and manufactures. Although intended for instruction rather than embellishment, no pains have been spared to insure their artistic excellence; the cost of their execution is enormous, and it is believed they will find a welcome reception as an admirable feature of the Cyclopædia, and worthy of its high character.

This work is sold to Subscribers only, payable on delivery of each volume. It will be completed in sixteen large octavo volumes, each containing about 800 pages, fully illustrated with several thousand Wood Engravings, and with numerous colored Lithographic Maps.

AMERICAN AND FOREIGN PATENTS

R. H. EDDY,

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,

No. 76 State Street, opposite Kilby Street Boston,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure Patents in the United States; also, in Great Britain, France, and other Foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents executed on reasonable terms, with despatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent, and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse.

CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents.

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges.

JOHN TAGGART."
